In the case in which Patrick Bruton, 2 Red Cow lane, sued the Dublin United Tramways company and the corporation for compensation for an accident, the recorder, at Green street, gave a decree for £12 against the corporation, having found that the corporation slipped upon the foot surface of a manhole at Usher's quay.

On Tuesday, before Mr. Justice Barton, in the chambers division, in the matter of the Companies Acts and the Irish Portland Cement & Brick company, his lordship made an order that the company be compulsorily wound up.

On Tuesday, in the lord judge's court, before Mr. Justice Ross, in the matter of the estate of Lambert, situated in Co. Galway, it was stated that the tenants refused to complete the purchase unless they got the same rights. Mr. Justice Ross said: "Game is past praying for. I regard the game of Ireland as quite gone."

At the annual meeting of the Licensed Grocers & Vintners' association, Mr. Andrew Jameson in the chair, the resolution was adopted, reiterating previous demands for the redemption of the promise of the late chancellor of the exchequer to remit the extra duties on spirits and beer. Another resolution protested against the attempt still being made to single out the licensed trade for exceptional treatment as regards value.

On Monday, under the auspices of the National Literary society, O'Donnell Maguire, E. P. Claremorris, delivered an interesting lecture entitled, "Some Popular Beliefs in Mayo." Dr. Maguire spoke in Irish, and subsequently gave an English summary of his remarks for the benefit of those who might not have fully understood the Irish.

The tenants on the Colles Sandes estate near Brossa, county Kerry, who have been processed for rent and arrears, have opened a campaign fund, to which they are contributing a percentage of the rent.

The bishop of Achonry preached in the church of St. Michael and Mary, Fexford, on Sunday. The spirit of the church has just been restored and the church itself has been completely improved.

O'Donnell Rossa arrived in Queensdown on Saturday morning, and on Sunday, at the conclusion of the Manchester Martyrs' demonstration in Cork he was presented with a number of interesting addresses from different bodies, including one from the Cork county council.

A meeting of the central council of the G. A. A. called for Dublin on Sunday to consider an objection by Bray Funnies to Tipperary in the Irish final for the Croke cup, was declared illegal by the chairman, as all the members were not summoned.

The United Irish league in the Kilteagh, Ballinagar and Raheen districts has taken steps to look after the interests of the evicted tenants on the local estates, over which negotiations for purchase are proceeding.

The police committee of the Belfast corporation has decided to prohibit trading in the streets after 9 o'clock p. m., throughout the year, and to recommend the corporation to prohibit the sale of papers on the streets on Sundays.

The Navan board of guardians has invited all the public boards in Meath to protest against the action of the estates commissioners in refusing to purchase the land, and to distribute the small farmers the untenanted land in the county.

The magisterial inquiry in connection with the Moy murder mystery ended on Tuesday, and after a short consultation the chairman announced that the majority of the magistrates refused to proceed on the evidence of the witnesses who were examined in the case.

There was a sheriff's sale on Wednesday in Maryborough of cattle seized by a tenant on the property of Dr. Jacob, a middleman, at Raheen, near Maryborough. The sale was followed by a public meeting, at which the proceedings against the tenant were condemned.

In a letter to Councillor Madden, Mr. Joseph Devlin, secretary of the I. L. L., states that the sacking committee has decided that in Dublin members of elected public bodies who have voted for the presentment of loyal addresses in this city are not to be admitted to membership of the league.

At Manorhamilton petty sessions on Wednesday John Dermott of Lerry was charged by District Inspector Sargent with having, as alleged, caused the death of John Rooney of Giebs by striking him on the head with a stick on last Manorhamilton fair night. The accused was sent for trial in custody to the winter assizes at Galway.

On Monday Mr. Alfred Blake, coroner, held an inquest into the circumstances attending the sudden death of Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, residing at Market avenue. The medical evidence showed that the deceased had been in poor health of late and that her death was due to a weak heart. A verdict to this effect was returned.

The lord mayor of Dublin, who was accorded a great reception in Derry on Wednesday, speaking at a banquet given in his honor that night, said he welcomed the devotion proposals as a confession of the failure of Dublin Castle rule, but if devolutionists wanted to be welcomed by the people they should not insult nationalists as Mr. Lindsay Talbot-Crossie had insulted Mr. John Lillien, M. P.

Terrible weather continues to prevail over considerable portions of Ireland and Great Britain. Severe snowstorms, hurricanes and visitations of lightning and thunder are reported from many districts. Shipping disasters, accompanied by loss of life, have also occurred. Outdoor work has been suspended, throwing thousands of men idle.

SECRET OF LONG LIFE

(Cable to New York Herald.) London, Dec. 5.—The secret of long life is a question which the editor of a weekly paper called Young Man has been asking a number of well known septuagenarians and octogenarians, and the result of a brief but interesting interview with this week's issue.

Lord Avebury, who, notwithstanding his busy life in the realms of commerce, science, literature and politics, replies that he is still hale at 70. His answer is written in a clear, steady handwriting, a facsimile of which is reproduced.

He thus defines the secret of long life: "I believe the secret of health is to eat little, drink little, be as much in the open air as possible, keep the mind free from anxiety and the conscience from remorse."

Frederick Harrison, chairman of the English postivist committee, who long since passed his three score years and ten, has been a great traveler in his day, and notwithstanding his years still takes pleasure in long walks. He gives the following advice:

"Touch not tobacco, spirits nor any unclean thing. Rise from every meal with an appetite, walk daily two hours, sleep at night seven hours, reverence all to whom reverence is due. Be content with what you have."

To look at Dr. Haig Brown, master of Charterhouse, no one would ever think he had attained the age of 81, and he attributes his long life and freedom from sickness to the spare diet in which he always indulged, freedom from financial care and abundant work with little leisure.

Sir Edward Fry, who has escaped after long service in the staffy law courts, now living at the age of 77 near Bristol, makes a brief but interesting reply in Latin, which may be translated "not too much of anything."

Justin McCarthy, who is 74, says: "The best way to grow old is according to my experience, to keep up steady, regular work, have as much open air physical exercise as possible, and think as little as may be about the advance of years."

William Thomson, Lord Kelvin, the first scientist to be made a peer, who is now in his 87th year, was installed chancellor of Glasgow university on Tuesday last. It is remarked of him that even at that good old age the brilliant intellect which has done mankind such infinite service for sixty years is as keen as ever.

The imagination which has pioneered so many epoch making discoveries is still as vivid as in the early days, when a young man he solved the problem of rendering the mariner's compass immune from the distracting influences of terrestrial magnetism. Wealthy, famous, or prodigious learning, he still is one of the most modest and simple minded of men, with a gentle face wearing the most pleasant of smiles, framed in snow white hair.

Queen Alexandra was 66 years old on Thursday. "May she live until she looks it," was the next way in which one congratulatory message was expressed. The passing years have lain their hands lightly on England's queen.

When she met Queen Amelia of Portugal on her arrival at Windsor station a couple of weeks ago a diplomat familiar with all the courts of the world declared:

"There you see the two most beautiful queens in Europe." "And," remarked one who had attended her, "I don't know which looks the younger of the two."

The queen passed her birthday at Sandringham, where in the evening there was a dinner party, at which some thirty-five sat down. The birthday cake was in three tiers, beautifully ornamented, mounted on globes of gold. Besides the members of the royal family the guests included the dowager Duchess of Manchester, Earl Howe, Earl and Countess de Grey, Lord Herbert Van Temple, the prime minister, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Balfour and Countess Airlie.

Lord Strathcona, who is in his 84th year, had not taken a midday lunch for sixty years. "For sixty years it has been my custom to go without lunch," remarked Lord Strathcona, "but that doesn't mean I have not taken a midday meal, but as a rule I take only two meals a day—breakfast and dinner. Of course, if there is anyone whom I particularly wish to meet I am prepared to take lunch with him. I should not like to recommend that every man dispense with lunch. Every thing depends on the individual. Some may be better with lunch, others without lunch. I don't know that this custom of dispense with lunch has made me more vigorous than other men. If I am more vigorous it may be due to the invigorating climate of northern Canada."

"I see no harm in smoking a little, but I believe in temperance—yes, temperance in all things, whether food, drink or tobacco. At the same time, in my opinion, the moderate use of tobacco is better than those who insist upon total abstinence."

IRISH CATHOLIC ATHLETES.

(From the Republic.) Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania and Harvard, Dartmouth, Holy Cross, Columbia and Brown are among the colleges which have developed in large measure for their football glory upon young men of Irish Catholic training. The son of a Torrington miner, Hogan, who leads Yale, ranks with his rival, Hurle, the doctory leader of Harvard, as a leading player of the season. Harvard's big substitute full back, Hunsley of Roxbury, is another of the legion of football players who have accomplished things. In Captain Larkin Holy Cross has one of the finest quarterbacks in the country. Dartmouth looks for football material to such men as J. T. McDevitt, the old Brighton High school back, who has been one of the most prominent members of the Dartmouth squad this season. Coach of Princeton, who will lead the Orange and Black football team next year, is one of the best players. With Burke, his team mate, he has won enough to lead the team throughout the year.

Catholic Advertising.

Catholics who desire to contribute their full share to the success of Catholic journalism should patronize those business firms whose advertisements appear in their Catholic paper. And they should make it known that this is one of the considerations of their trading. It may be put down as a rule that the houses which do not advertise in your Catholic paper are unfriendly to it.

The fact that a firm does advertise in your Catholic paper is a guarantee that it considers your patronage worth the having. It is a guarantee that it believes you a desirable customer and is willing to patronize your paper to secure you. Such people are worthy of your patronage and you should always scan your paper to see who they are. If you have money to spend they are the people who should have the first call on it.
